Q.9 (a) Analyse how Bacon contrasts the limitations of "expert men" with the broader capabilities of educated individuals. What does this reveal about his views on the value of learning? Write in about 150 words. [7]

"Studies serve for delight, for ornament, and for ability. Their chief use for delight is in privateness and retiring; for ornament is in discourse; and for ability is in the judgment and disposition of business. Expert men can execute, and perhaps judge of particulars, one by one; but the general counsels, and the plots and marshalling of affairs, come best from those that are learned.
Read not to contradict and confute; nor to believe and take for granted; nor to find talk and discourse; but to weigh and consider. Some books are to be tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested."

(b) The description of the setting prepares the reader for unusual, imaginative events that follow in the story. Analyse how this passage effectively establishes atmosphere. Write in about 150 words. [7]

"In a little district west of Washington Square the streets have run crazy and broken themselves into small strips called 'places.' These 'places' make strange angles and curves. One street crosses itself a time or two. An artist once discovered a valuable possibility in this street. Suppose a collector with a bill for paints, paper and canvas should, in traversing a square, suddenly meet himself coming back, without a cent having been paid on account!"
